

INVENTION DISCOVERY

To extract maximum value from your intellectual property (IP) you must first identify what it is you have and how it could be protected.

An “invention discovery” session aims to identify what intellectual property you hold relevant to your business activities and potentially “discover” hidden or partly neglected IP assets that can be made to work for you. This may reveal patentable technology as well as other forms of IP rights such as design rights and trade marks.

We will structure an invention discovery session to suit your specific needs and circumstances. Typically, a session will cover:

- ▀ Your technology
- ▀ Your business situation
- ▀ Your existing IP
- ▀ IP that you could potentially obtain in the future
- ▀ IP-related business considerations
- ▀ The outline of an IP filing programme with due consideration of timing factors and costs

The report that we provide after an invention discovery session will summarise our strategic IP advice and all of the practical outcomes, including actions, timings and estimated costs.
